

Growing up, I remember balanced news stories. I had a teacher who made a point of bringing in several articles about an issue. When I watch most news programs, I am struck by how politicized they are. Exceptions are NPR and the BBC. Why is a public resource (bandwidth) being handed over to corporate and political interests? What happened to public interest? If the media companies are not willing to serve in the public interest, using a public resource, perhaps it is time to redistribute the resource to a more responsible source.
